Saturday's Post By Express.

LONDON, December 12.

ON Thursday the Attorney General, in the House of Commons, moved for leave to bring in a bill further to continue the Act for suspending the Habeas Corpus Act.

Mr. Sheridan opposed the motion; on a division for the bill 51, against it 13.

Mr. Ryder, in a Committee of the whole House, moved, that it be the opinion of the Committee, that persons engaged in the Herring Fishery should have salt duty free, for the purpose of curing Herrings. That all persons engaged in the Herring Fishery should for a limited time be protected from being impressed into his Majesty's service; and that the bounty given upon Pilchards packed up and prepared for exportation should be allowed for all those intended for home consumption. These Resolutions were agreed to, and the Report ordered to be received to-morrow.

This morning arrived the Paris journals to the 9th inst. The premature rupture at Aschaffenburg was followed up with real hostilities, and several smart skirmishes have since taken place on the Mein. Angereau is ascending that river on both its banks. He has taken Aschaffenburg, Wurtzburg, and has fixed his headquarters at Schweinfurt. Another French army, St. Suzanne's, we believe, is descending the Rednitz. These two armies will join where the rivers meet, and, inclosing a rich country behind them, will press the Austrians under Simbschen and Klenau into Bohemia, thus covering Moreau's left wing, while he advances.

The armistice in Italy expired at the same time with that on the Mein, namely, on the 22d ult. and General Brune left Milan, with his staff, to fix his head quarters at Brescia. Great numbers of French troops are marching through Switzerland to Italy, and Brune will probably endeavour to turn the Austrians by the North of the Lake of Garda, supported as he will be by an army in the Valteline, and with Macdonald or Lecourbe penetrating into the Tyrol. Gen. Moreau, we are told, has left Munich, and proceeding on to Landshut.

A letter from Berlin of the 23d of November states, that the Emperor of Russia has sent an official note to all the Foreign Ministers at Petersburgh, of which the following is the substance:—"That on mounting his throne, he found his States involved in a war, provoked by a great nation, which had fallen into dissolution; that conceiving the Coalition a mere measure of preservation, this motive induced him to join it; that he did not at that time think it necessary to adopt the system of an armed neutrality on sea for the protection of commerce, not doubting but that the sincerity of his allies, and their reciprocal interests, would be sufficient to secure the flag of the Northern Powers from insult. But that being disappointed in his expectation by the perfidious enterprises of a great Power, which had sought to enchain the liberty of the seas by capturing Danish convoys, the independence of the maritime Powers of the North appeared to him to be openly menaced. He consequently considers it a measure of necessity to have recourse to an armed neutrality, the success of which was acknowledged in the time of the American war."

Letters from Copenhagen of the 29th ultimo, state, that the Court of Denmark is fitting out 17 sail of the line and a considerable number of frigates, gun-boats, and floating-batteries.

The Admiralty, it is reported, have received advice of the Brest fleet having put to sea. They are said to have taken a western direction in the first instance, and hence it is supposed by many that Ireland is their destination; but the general opinion is, that they are bound for the Mediterranean ——If the whole, or any part of them, are actually at sea, be their destination what it may, we may shortly expect to receive a proper account of them, a formidable division of the Channel fleet having sailed from Torbay on Saturday.

It appears from the second Report of the Committee of the House of Commons, "That, in each of the two last seasons not less than 1200 boats were employed in the fishery; and the total quantity taken has, by the best judges, been supposed equal to 500,000 barrels, each containing about 1000 herrings. On a supposition that, by any exertions, this quantity could be doubled in the present season, an additional supply of animal food would be obtained, nearly equal to the consumption of two millions of persons in three months, allowing three herrings daily to each person."

C. Codrington, Esq. of Dodington, member for Tewkesbury, has remitted to the Corporation of that town 250l. for the relief of the poor.

At an Assembly of the Corporation of Salisbury on Friday the freedom of that city was unanimously voted to be presented to Lord Nelson.

Mr. Popham, butcher, of Beach-Farm, on his return from Bath market on Saturday evening last was attacked and robbed of about 5l. near the monument on Lansdown by two footpads. One of the villains proposed murdering him, but was diffuaded by his companion.

Thursday two men were burnt to death in a coal-pit at Coalford, one of whom has left a wife and three children.
