LONDON, February 27.

IT is with great regret that we obſerve no alteration in the Report of his Majeſty's health. The Bulletin communicated yeſterday morning to Enquirers at the Queen's Houſe, was as follows:—

"QUEEN'S HOUSE, FEB. 26.

"His Majeſty's fever is in no reſpect encreaſed to-day.

(Signed) "T. GIBBONS,
"T. R. REYNOLDS."

In the afternoon of Wedneſday Mr. Pitt had a long audience of the Prince of Wales, in conſequence of a requeſt tranſmitted to Carleton Houſe in the morning. The object of the viſit was to repreſent to the Prince his own peculiar ſituation, together with that of the country, in conſequence of the King's very ſudden indiſpoſition, and to ſubmit to his Royal Highneſs the meaſures he conſidered as neceſſary to be taken. It was true that he had tendered his reſignation to his Majeſty; that the reſignation had been graciouſly accepted and publicly announced, and that he had only remained in office for ſeveral days paſt, for the ſpecific purpoſe of facilitating that part of the public buſineſs which had come moſt immediately under his obſervation and department. The concluſion however was—that notwithſtanding all that had paſſed, he was ſtill de facto in office, and he thought it his duty to hold his ſituation until his Majeſty's recovery, or until ſome other diſpoſition of affairs.

The Prince of Wales is ſaid to have liſtened with every poſſible attention to Mr. Pitt's repreſentation, and to have agreed with him, that not having completed all the formalities of his reſignation, he was ſtill to be conſidered as holding his ſituation, notwithſtanding his Majeſty had tranſferred his favor to another Miniſter.

We are ſtill without any ſatisfactory information reſpecting Admiral Gantheaume's ſquadron. We learn from Plymouth, that the Immortaliſe kept company with them three days. They appeared to be full of troops. One of the ſhips of the line had loſt her topmaſt, and was in tow of a frigate.

A letter from Vienna, of the 2d inſt. ſtates, that the Emperor of Ruſſia has offered to interpoſe with Bonaparte in favour of Portugal and Naples, on condition that Court prohibit all commercial communication with England.

On board one of the laſt captures made by Lord Keith there were found ſome valuable Charts on the coaſts of Egypt, and the ſoundings of the Port of Alexandria, the inner harbour of which the Turks would never permit European veſſels to enter.

The conferences at Luneville are now finally terminated, and the affairs of the German Empire, it is ſaid, are, in the firſt inſtance, to be ſettled by France, Auſtria, and Pruſſia.—The French funds are at 59¾

From the North there is very little intelligence. The maritime preparations of the Confederate Powers are ſpoken of; at the ſame time that the pacific wiſh of Denmark, and the reported coolneſs between Ruſſia and Sweden, continue to be mentioned in the moſt ſerious terms.

The new Miniſter and the new Ruſſian owner of Malta may ſympathiſe with each other. They have both the title and only want the poſſeſſion.

The German papers are full of a report of the projected plan of attack upon the Turkiſh Empire, in which the French are immediately to co-operate with the Ruſſians, and in which the Houſe of Auſtria will eventually have a ſhare. It is ſaid, that a diviſion of the army of the Rhine, under the command of General Lecourbe, is to be employed to aſſiſt Paſſwan Oglou, and to accelerate the downfal of the Turkiſh Empire. Indeed, that ſome great ſchemes of partition or plunder is in agitation ſeems evident from every thing that is paſſing on the theatre of Europe.

The New York papers were yeſterday received to the 17th ult. and Boſton papers to the 20th; the former of theſe contain a long Proclamation of General Touſſlaint, relative to important regulations reſpecting trade with St. Domingo.—He has laid a duty of 20 per cent. on all imports and exports. The New York Commercial Advertiſer, of the 16th, ſays—"It is now aſcertained that the treaty with France will not be ratified unconditionally."—The objections are to the 2d article, in which the ſubject of indemnity for ſpoliations is waved; and to the 3d, which ſtipulates the mutual ſurrender of veſſels of ſtate, taken by either party. A Bill has paſſed the Congreſs, for erecting a Mauſoleum to General Waſhington. Two hundred thouſand dollars are appropriated to this honourable teſtimony of national affection and gratitude.—Mr. Jefferſon and Mr. Burr having an equal number of votes, the choice will now devolve on the Houſe of Repreſentatives, which will elect the former.
