HOUSE OF COMMONS, Thursday, June 9.

THE Secretary at War moved for leave to bring in a bill for transferring professional seamen from the militia to the royal navy. The measure he meant to recommend was similar to one which had been adopted in 1795, with the exception of some slight alterations, which he begged leave to state shortly. By the former bill, any man who had served three years at sea was entitled to his discharge from the militia regiment in which he may have been enrolled. By the present bill, none but professional seamen, who should be approved of by a sea officer, were to be intitled to that discharge; as many of them may have been enrolled as substitutes, it was proposed that the expence of providing substitutes in their places should be defrayed by the public; which should be engaged to serve whether substitutes for five years, not as under the former bill, for the remainder only of the seamen's term. After some conversation between Mr. Hawkes, and the Secretary at War, leave was given.—Adjourned.

LONDON, June 9.

A Letter from Hanover by the Mail dated the 27th May, mentions, that the greatest efforts were making for the defence of the country; but the report of its being intended absolutely to call the people out in a mass is contradicted; the object of the measures adopted hitherto being only to ascertain the numbers capable of service, for the purpose of reinforcing the regular troops in case of necessity. The garrison of Fort George, and the fortresses of Hameln, have received reinforcements of artillery and troops; and it has been found that the neighbourhood of Hameln may be inundated in such a manner as to add greatly to its strength. Field Marshal Count de Walmoden is appointed Commander in Chief of the Hanoverian troops, and his Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge Lieut. General and Inspector of Infantry and Cavalry.

A letter from Berlin of the 28th, states, that the North of Germany, particularly the Elbe and the Weser, will be protected by Prussia, even should Hanover be given up.

The following letter was yesterday said to have been received by a respectable house in the City:

"Bentheim, May 28.—Evening.

"The French army on its route to Hanover was met by a Russian Aid de Camp, who, on the part of a Russian General here, requested a conference with the Commander of the French troops, since which time the French army has halted."

All the small vessels along the French coast are put in requisition by the French Government.

The reason for Bonaparte's wishing to prolong the Negociation is now pretty manifest—one month more would have been the means of his securing the property which is now finding its way to the British troops.

The new Bank, called the Territorial Bank of France, has already stopped payment. The Managers, however, give out, that they have resources to satisfy all demands.

According to letters from the Hague, the British Ambassador M. Litton was to leave the Hague on Friday morning last, to embark at Helvoetsluys.—At the Exchange at Rotterdam, the names of the Dutch ships taken by the English in the North Seas to the 20th ult. has been posted; they are seven in number, all richly laden.

The Dolphin catter has taken and sent for Plymouth a large Swedish ship, having French property on board to the value of 60,000l.

We rejoice in the daily occupation of recording the successes and rewards of our gallant countrymen employed against the inveterate enemies of England. An East Indiaman and two West Indiamen are among this day's tributes from France. Another ship of the line has failed to join the Channel fleet, and several reinforcements of seamen have arrived.

By dispatches found in one of the prizes, it appears that the French have finally deserted St. Domingo, which is wholly in the possession of the Blacks and Mulattoes.

A Messenger arrived in Paris is said to have brought intelligence of the King of Prussia's demise.
