HARRIS HOAXER CONFESSES

Ex - Pupil at Epsom Who Coined Story of Will NAME SECRET

The mystery of the Hoax of the Harris is a mystery no longer. Yesterday a man who had been a student at Epsom College, and is now in business, went to the college and confessed to the headmaster that it was he who sent out the letters which caused so many people on Tuesday to attend there and to ring up Madame Tussaud's. He expressed his regret for what he had done. His original intention was to send only to friends in the immediate vicinity as a joke, but he extended the area, fearing that sending only to friends might lead to his being suspected. Mr. A. C. Powell, the headmaster, yesterday said that suitable punishment "was going to be meted out domestically. I cannot tell you the name of the joker except that he is a more or less local business man," he added. "We all deplore the result, but these young people—ah, well!"

A large number of people received a letter purporting to come from a firm of solicitors, Styles, Thomas and Giffard," stating that, as executors of the estate of one John Sebastian Harris, at one time a master at the college, they were calling a meeting of legatees at the college. The address given proved to be that of a Marylebone boarding house, and the "phone number" that of Madame Tussaud's. "And of course, there was never such a master as John Sebastian Harris," Mr. Powell said. "What with 'phone calls and those who turned up for the meeting, we had a very busy time."

NO PASSPORTS NEEDED

French Concession to Tourists During This Year's Paris Exhibition

Although as yet no official statement has been received in London, it is believed that the French Government is to abolish passports for tourists to France this year. This step is being taken in order to make travelling easier for visitors to the International Colonial Exhibition to be held at Vincennes, Paris. The period during which passports will be unnecessary will start in May, when the exhibition opens, and continue for the five months the exhibition will last.

OTHERS' NEEDS - YOUR CARE

It is only natural that at Eastertide—the first break-away from business and home cares since Christmas, and the first opportunity which most of us get to enjoy spring sunshine—that we should feel a sense of joyous happiness. It is indeed a welcome break.

To-day many of us will be putting the final touches to the arrangements we have made to enjoy to the full the Easter recess. We should not, however, be unmindful of those who through sickness or poverty are unable to share with us the happiness that Eastertide brings.

Indeed it is right that we should remember them and extend to them a helping hand, and the holiday will be all the happier if we do so.

If your thoughts turn to the children there are two wonderful organisations who will welcome a donation. Dr. Barnardo's Homes are at present supporting over 8,000 destitute children, and endeavouring to give them a fair start in life. Imagine the needs of such a vast family.

The Shaftesbury Homes, too, are in need of funds and will welcome your gift however small. Some may prefer to help those organisations whose work is devoted to relieving sickness. The Prince of Wales's Hospital at Tottenham has a debt of no less than £40,000. This hospital has been guaranteed by Sir Albert Barratt, J.P., the sum of £20,000 on the express condition that £10,000 is obtained by public subscription by the 30th of this month.

This is a magnificent offer on the part of Sir Albert Barratt, and we are sure that Daily Mirror readers will give what help they can so that the £10,000 will be obtained by the date mentioned.

The Cancer Hospital—the first special hospital in London devoted to cancer treatment and research, is doing splendid work and requires funds for further extensions. Besides rendering valuable service in treating cases of cancer, it is also carrying on methodical and scientific investigation into the causes of this terrible disease. More beds and more equipment are needed.

Before you set off for the country or the seaside post a donation to one of these organisations, and you will feel happy in the thought that you have done something to help your less fortunate fellow creatures who make a special appeal to you at this time of the year.
