Saturday's Post. By Express.

From the GOTTENBURGH MAIL.

STOCKHOLM, MAY 23.

HIS Majesty, it is expected, will set off to-morrow to visit the camp at Schonen, which is to consist of 3000 men. He will return hither about the end of June.

Monsieur Tarrach, the Prussian Minister, and Secretary, have not yet left this capital, but it is reported they will take their departure in a few days. It is understood here that the treaty between England, Russia, and this country, is fully arranged and concluded.

LONDON, June 7.

On Wednesday the two Houses of Parliament resumed their deliberations after the holidays. No business of any importance occurred.—Priority is directed to the beginning of next week, when the consideration of Lord Melville's case will engage the wisdom of the Commons.

On Thursday Mr. Brooke presented two petitions to the House, the one from the Woollen Clothiers of York, the other from those of Gloucester, Somerset, and Wiltshire; the former signed by 39,000 Clothiers, and the latter 16000. His object was to have the laws repealed, and as many as applied to the present state of the trade ought to be retained, while the rest should be repealed. After some observations on Admiral Berkeley and Sir Robert Buxton, the petitions were ordered to lie on the table.—Mr. Huskisson moved the consideration of the report of the Coal Committee. After some conversation between Sir M. Ridley, Mr. Burton, Sir R. Milbank, Mr. S. Stanhope, Col. Lloyd, and Mr. Huskisson, leave was given to bring 50,000 tuns of Coals to the City by the Islington Canal, and a Bill was also ordered on that purpose.

Yesterday morning some dispatches, taken on board a Spanish packet by the Æolus privateer, Guernsey, were brought to the Secretary of State's office. They were thrown overboard by the Spaniards, but recovered by the exertions of the people belonging to the privateer.

No further advices from Lord Nelson have reached the Admiralty. The last dispatches in his Lordship leave no doubt of his having succeeded to the West Indies—a circumstance which renders it more than probable that he has obtained accurate information of the course taken by the Combined Squadrons.

Admiral Russel has again failed from Yarmouth, to which his squadron returned a few days ago. Some accounts say he is failed for the Downs, but it is more probable that he is gone to his station off the Texel.

The expedition under the command of Sir Ralph Coote will consist of the following regiments; the 8th, 24th, 32d, 38th, 62d, 71st, 72d, and 92d, which were to rendezvous at the Cove of Cork, and were expected to sail at the end of last or the beginning of this week.

The Adgincourt, of 64 guns, and the Rosario of 36 of war, arrived direct from the Channel at the Cove of Cork yesterday week; they left Lord Gardner on the preceding Sunday off Brest, with 21 sail of the line. Admiral Collingwood, with twelve sail of the line, has been detached to reinforce the squadron under the command of Lord Nelson, previous to the Adgincourt's leaving the Channel Fleet.

The Bologne Flotilla begins to send forth its inner swarms, but they never venture from under their batteries. It is said that Buonaparte has reached that port, but this is mere conjecture.

Yesterday the King reviewed all the City Corps, except the 3d, which has been already reviewed by his Majesty, along with the three regiments of the Honourable East India Company's Volunteers. The Honourable Artillery Company took the right of the right brigade, the 2d Loyal London the left; the 1st Loyal London had the first post of honour in the 2d brigade; and the 6th Loyal London (or Bishopsgate Corps) with their Yagers, the second. General the Earl of Harrington commanded the whole, and under him the Bride Generals Ford and Burrard.

The British naval pillar, (as one of the leading Yorks) has lately been erected near the Low Walk, South Shields. It is intended to include the names of Howe, St. Vincent, Duncan, and Nelson, on each side of its square base.

Extract of a letter from Milan, dated May 12.

Many persons think that Buonaparte is much offended with the Emperor of Germany, and with the King of Naples, and that the French troops collected in the country are not merely for a show.—According to the best information 25,000 Frenchmen have encamped near Marengo, under Lasnes, 32,000 Cis-Lombardy and Mantua, under Jourdan. Menou commands 12,000 in Piedmont; and St. Cyr 16,000 in the Kingdom of Naples. Round the coast of Genoa and Tuscany, and in the Papal Territory, are quartered 25,000 men; and the Italian troops amount to 15,000. On the other hand, Austria has a cordon of troops in Italy, and in the ci devant Venetian States, supposed to amount to 60,000 men, daily augmented by the arrivals of two corps from the Hereditary States; and the British and English forces in the Mediterranean are estimated upwards of 20,000 men. The vicinity of so large and numerous armies enuse alarms and speculations not favourable to the desires of wishers for peace, though the general opinion is that this year will pass before any blows are struck on the Continent."

Extract of a letter from an officer in the Channel Fleet, dated May 28.

The enemy's Rochefort Squadron are now, past doubt, returned safe to their port, where they are lying with the greatest alacrity; it consisted of the following ships of war, viz.—One three-decker, five deckers, three frigates, two brigs, and various gun boats and bomb-vessels. The lamentation is general amongst them, you may suppose, that no British Squadron have been fortunate enough to have intercepted the fleet either going out or returning home. Admiral Linzee was detached from us on the 23d instant, with a sail of the line, and immediately stood to the southward. I am sorry to say that our worthy Commander, Lord Gardner, is far from being in good health. The Brest Fleet appears quietly disposed enough in their moorings."

The city of Stralsund, which is now made a depôt for English merchandise, is a large fortified place in the Pomerania, with a convenient port. It is situated in the Eastern part of the Baltic Sea, near the Coast of the Gulph of Lubeck, its territories bordering on Mecklenburgh to the West, and Prussian Pomerania on the East. It is well placed for interior communication with the Northern parts of Germany. It is near the entrance of the Oder, and other large rivers that fall into the Baltic.

Tuesday being the anniversary of his Majesty's birth-day, the same was celebrated in this City with the usual demonstrations of loyalty, and a feu de joye was very correctly fired on the occasion by the Oxford Loyal Volunteers.

On Tuesday last the Hampton Lucy Volunteers assembled in honour of his Majesty's birth-day; after twenty rounds of excellent firing, they dined together at the expence of the non-commissioned officers, when a great number of loyal toasts were drank.

On Tuesday the Proprietors of the Grand Junctional Canal held their annual meeting at the Crown and Anchor Tavern, in the Strand. It was stated to the meeting, by one of the Solicitors, that the Committee had lately called in the assistance of Mr. Thomas Telford, who had particularly inspected the whole line of the Canal, and the several works and improvements now carrying on upon it. It was estimated that the works to be erected will cost upwards of 47,000l. He then proceeded to state to the meeting the rapid increase in the revenues of the Company, since the opening of the line, by the completion of the tunnel at Blisworth, and mentioned the five last monthly returns of tonnage to be in Jan. 1805, 781l. Feb. 3102l. March, 5105l. April, 5699l. May, 6602l.

On Monday last died, at Headington, Mrs. Couldrey, wife of Mr. Couldrey, late of this city.

Sunday afternoon last a fire broke out in the dwelling-house of Mr. James Knowles, Farmer, of Pinvin, near Pershore, which entirely destroyed the same; great part of the houshold furniture was preserved by the exertions of the Feckenham Volunteers.
