ISLINGTON VESTRY.

The Vestry met at the offices, Upper-street, on Friday evening, the Vicar, the Rev. W. Taylor Sclater, presiding. Among those present were Messrs. J. T. Jackson, P. R. Jackson, J. H. Cannam, S. Postle, W. H. Walkley, S. Bayton, H. H. Saunders, A. Chamberlain, A. R. Pennington, J. H. Mote, A. Walkley, and W. H. Peacock.

RELIGIOUS TEACHING IN BOARD SCHOOLS.

Mr. William F. Dewey, Vestry Clerk, read a letter from the Shoreditch Vestry, enclosing copy of a resolution passed at their last meeting. It was to the effect that the Vestry watched with grave concern the policy of the London School Board in regard to the teaching of certain theological creeds and dogmas in the Board schools. They regarded such action as retrogressive, opposed to the spirit of toleration which now so happily actuated to revive sectarian bitterness and dangerous to civil and religious liberty. They protested against any religious test being imposed on the teachers.

Mr. Rumbelow moved that the letter lie on the table.

Mr. Stonelake moved, as an amendment, "That the letter be referred to the General Purposes Committee.

The amendment, on being put, was lost.

A division was demanded on the motion, with the following result:—For the motion, 19; Against, 17.

The motion was declared carried.

Mr. Stonelake: Discourteous.

Mr. Jackson: Order.

Mr. Stonelake: Discourteous.

Mr. Jackson: Order, order.

The Chairman: It is not discourteous when 19 members voted for it, and 17 against it.

PRINTING CONTRACTS.

The Vestry Clerk read a communication from Mr. Bowerman, calling attention to the resolution passed by the Vestry in October last, by which it was agreed that a clause be inserted in the Vestry printing contract preventing the work being done out of London, and asking, in view of the voters' list being "adjacent," that that clause be put into practical effect.

The Vestry Clerk said three tenders were received for the printing of the voters' list, and that of Mr. Wyman's was accepted; that Mr. Wyman declined to give an undertaking that the work would be done entirely in London. As Mr. Wyman's tender was £150 less than the other two, and as the matter was of pressing importance, he took the opinion of Mr. Street, senior overseer, and gave Wyman the order to do the work, thinking that the ratepayers should not be put to the additional expense that the enforcing of the clause would entail.

Mr. Hollyman moved that the matter be referred to the General Purposes Committee

Mr. Rowden moved, as an amendment, "That the bye-law be suspended, in order that the matter be discussed."

The amendment was lost.

THE LABOUR BUREAU.

Mr. J. S. Furlong, replying to a question, said it was not intended to close the Labour Bureau during the summer months. It was intended to give it a year's trial. (Hear, hear).

THE PROPOSED ENLARGEMENT OF THE VESTRY OFFICES.

The Special Committee reported as follows:—"The Committee has considered the further reference of April 6th, 1894, to the effect that the committee inquire and report as to the possibility of obtaining additional property adjoining the Vestry-hall for the purpose of its enlargement, and that having directed the Vestry Clerk to communicate with the owners of the property at Pemberton-house and with the Commissioners of Police with a view of ascertaining whether either the 'Florence' public house or the police-station might be purchased for the purpose of the enlargement, and that the lessee of the 'Florence' public house would be prepared to sell his interest for £10 000, and the freeholders for £4,000, on the condition of leaving the Vestry to deal with the freeholder, and that the Commissioners of Police would be prepared to recommend the sale of the police station on the understanding that the Vestry shall provide a freehold site equal to the present one in area, &c., and contribute a sum of £10,000 towards the erection of a new station. The committee being of opinion that the Vestry will consider neither of these offers practicable, has turned its attention to the possibility of increasing the present offices accommodation by adding a floor to the main office, and has instructed the architect previously employed (Mr. Douglass Matthews) to prepare plans accordingly. These the Committee submit, together with Mr. Matthews' report thereon, and from the report it will be seen that the architect estimates the cost of removing the present roof and placing a new floor at £1,350, exclusive of furniture and fixtures. This scheme being entirely dependent upon the consent of the Commissioner of Police to the insertion of window lights in the eastern wall of the office, the Committee has approached the Commissioner of Police for that purpose, and has received a communication that his consent will be given upon the following conditions:—(a) That no window is made lower than the top of the existing police wall, 7 ft. 6 in. (b) That the lower sashes of the two lower windows shall be placed with opening lights and that such windows shall only open from the top. (c) That the rental of £1 be paid annually for the easement. (d) That the Vestry must understand the receiver reserves the right at any future time to utilise his ground without reference to the existence of these windows. The Committee being of opinion that the above scheme, if feasible is the only practical means of providing additional accommodation in the present building, recommends its adoption by the Vestry, and (as it is of the utmost importance that the work should be commenced without delay, so as to take advantage of the vacation) that the Committee be authorised to accept the conditions of the Commissioner of Police, and to carry out the work."

Mr. Furlong, in moving the adoption of the report, urged the necessity of proceeding at once with the work, in order that advantage might be taken of the vacation. He knew he was speaking to some gentlemen who were anxious to have a town-hall, but he would point out that additions to the Vestry office would not hinder the progress of a town-hall. The alteration suggested was the cheapest that could be adopted, and he hoped the Vestry would refer the report back to the Committee to order the work to be carried out.

Mr. Andrew seconded.

Mr. Bartram moved, as an amendment, that the consideration of the report be adjourned, in order that Mr. Matthews' report might be printed and circulated among the members of the Vestry. He disagreed with so important a matter being carried through knowing it to be an old fad of some members of the Committee to put another storey on the present offices.

Mr. Stokes seconded.

Mr. Mote hoped the Committee's report would be adopted, believing that the office accommodation was absolutely inadequate for the present requirements of the departments. The alterations would take three months to carry out—and it must be clear to every member that the most convenient time to do the work would be during the vacation. It seemed to him to be absurd that the matter should be longer delayed, and the report printed for circulation among the members.

Mr. W. H. Saunders said he entirely agreed with the remarks of Mr. Mote, and added that the alterations would benefit the health of their clerks.

Mr. Stonelake thought it strange that the matter should be brought forward within four months of the demise of the Vestry. He would like to know who gave the committee authority to employ Mr. Douglass Matthews to draw plans.

Mr. Rayson said he did not see any force in the argument that because the Vestry would go out of office in November, they should be inactive at the present time.

Mr. Johnson said strongly as he felt there was necessity for increasing the present office accommodation, he thought it would be advisable to delay the matter for a short time. The committee had found out a better scheme than the one suggested some weeks ago; in a week's time they might even improve upon the scheme Mr. Furlong had introduced that night.

The amendment was put and lost, and the report of the Committee was adopted.

MR. JACKSON'S MOTION.

Mr. P. R. Jackson moved, "That an advertisement be inserted in not more than four of the local papers stating that copies of the Vestry's printed agenda papers may be obtained by the principal clergymen, secretaries of associations, &c., in the parish, on application, at the price of one penny, or 1s. 6d. for postage." He said that the object of his resolution was to draw attention to the motion by those persons on whose behalf it was passed.

Mr. Rumbelow seconded.

Mr. Cannam thought the work's principal clergyman, secretaries of associations, &c., was leaving the matter rather open. Who was to decide who were the principal clergymen, secretaries, &c. in the parish?

Mr. Rayson opposed the motion on the ground of economy. It was the most lame motion he had ever heard brought forward in that Vestry.

Mr. Lancaster said he would like to know who were the principal clergymen in the parish, and argued that it was of little use to supply to those gentlemen the agenda unless they were also supplied with the printed minutes of the proceedings, showing what business had been done.

Mr. Stonelake regarded the motion as an indefinite one, and regretted that Congregational ministers were not included.

The Chairman: I think Mr. Jackson intended to include them.

Mr. Postle said if the Vestry insisted upon those who required the agenda paying six months' postage in advance, they would receive but few applications.

Dr. Bucknill said he thought the advertisement was not necessary. Some time ago the Vestry passed a resolution to the effect that if those who required the agenda would leave their addresses, they might have it. He presumed those who required the agenda were persons who took an interest in the proceedings of the Vestry, which were admirably reported in the local Press, and those persons could ascertain by studying the reports under what conditions they could obtain the agenda. He could hardly regard those who did not peruse the reports of the Vestry proceedings as those who took an interest in the work of the Vestry, and he did not think the Vestry was justified in calling attention to their work by advertisement.

Mr. Chamberlayne moved, as an amendment, "That the advertisement that any ratepayer would have an agenda on forwarding 1s. 6d. every half-year to cover postage."

Mr. Dryden seconded.

The Rev. G. Turner said the motion arose out of the refusal of the request of the Reform Union to have the Vestry's agenda.

Mr. Jackson said he would accept Mr. Chamberlayne's amendment.

The amendment and motion, on being put, were both lost.

MR. ALBERT BARRATT'S WEDDING.

On Saturday morning a very interesting wedding took place at the parish church, Southgate, when Mr. Albert Barratt, of Wood Green and Shepherdess Walk, fourth son of Mr. G. Osborne Barratt, of Cranley Hall, Muswell Hill, was married to Miss Milly Reeves, daughter of Mr. Samuel Reeves, of 506, Caledonian-road. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Cyril F. Wilson. The bride was attended by Amy and Nora Reeves (twin sisters, godchildren of the bride), and by Arthur and Bernard Roberts as pages, Mr. Oliver Reeves was best man, for whom the bride was given away by her father. The bride was attired in a costume of rich ivory satin trimmed with embroidered chiffon. She wore a handsome tulle veil fastened with real orange blossoms, and a dainty arrangement in the same kind with the same blossoms; she carried a beautiful shower bouquet of choice white flowers, and wore a diamond necklet, the gift of her father. The little bridesmaids—six years old—were attired in white silk Puritan costumes, and close fitting bonnets. They carried white posies. The pages were old gold satin Cavalier suits, with white hats and plumes. The presents were numerous and costly, and included several beautiful gifts from the employees of Messrs. Barratt and Co. Most of the members of both families were present at the luncheon after the ceremony.

After luncheon the wedding party adjourned to the Southgate Theatre, Islington, which had been exclusively engaged for the occasion, and was completely filled, at the invitation of the bridegroom, by friends and employees of both families. Mr. Wilmot had very tastefully decorated the white flowers the box reserved for the happy pair, who were greeted on their entrance by the whole of the audience standing and cheering with enthusiasm that the performance was suspended for some time. After the performance of "The Spital-fields Weaver" and "Sister, London," Mr. J. L. Toole, amid loud applause, came forward and tendered his hearty congratulations to the bride and bridegroom. He read the following telegram from Mr. Henry Irving: "My respectful greetings and hearty good wishes to the bride and bridegroom." (Cheers.) Continuing, Mr. Toole said Mr. Barratt had been long connected with the events of life, and he hoped that the sweetest day of his life, and that his life would be one long day of sweetness. (Laughter and applause.) At the conclusion Mr. Toole led the gentlemen present in loud and hearty cheers were given at his instigation for Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barratt. Refreshments were provided for all the guests, and this reception was the last event of the wedding festivities.

Among the invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Chamberlain and Miss Chamberlain, Mr. and Mrs. George Barratt, Mr. and Mrs. Ward, J.P., and Mrs. Ward, Mr. W. H. Collingridge, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Plaistowe, etc. The newly-wedded couple left, amid the hearty wishes of all the company, for a honeymoon spent in Devonshire and Surrey, at the country house of Mr. E. Barratt, lent by the brother of the bridegroom. The travelling dress of the bride was a grey tweed suit, trimmed guipure, and toque hat of same lace, with mauve orchids.

MR. BARTLEY AND THE BUDGET BILL.

In the Budget debate Mr. Bartley urged that the small estates left by officers in the Army and Navy who were killed in action, should be exempt from estate duty. This is now the case with soldiers and sailors. He also urged that the widows and orphans of men who leave only small sums, and who are killed in acts of heroism in saving or assisting in other persons' lives in any instance in mines, fires, or from drowning, etc., should also be exempt. It is hard that the State should derive a benefit from the death of those people when, but for their acts of heroism, would have lived and not paid the duty for many years The Government would not, however, give way, and insisted on the full duty being paid by the widows and orphans. The question of exempting up to £200 the property of members of friendly societies who have died was also brought forward, and Mr. Bartley urged that it would be most desirable to encourage thrift, these small sums should be exempt. The Chancellor of the Exchequer stated that the sums paid for these small estates were almost entirely absorbed in expenses, but although this was the case, and therefore practically no benefit accrued to the Exchequer, he refused to make the concession. Mr. Bartley has pressed on several occasions during the past week that facilities and encouragement should be given in the Budget to induce people to lay by life insurances, in savings bank, and by other means to pay the new heavy death duties. It is obvious what an advantage this would be to the Exchequer as the money would be at once available, and widows and children often left in reduced circumstances on the death of the husband and father, would be saved much distress and suffering in finding the money. This obviously wise plan, which was pressed in many directions, was, however, refused by the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

SUDDEN DEATH AT TUFNELL-PARK.

Dr. Danford Thomas held an inquest on Friday, on the body of Louisa Dick, aged 65, lately residing at No. 247, Tufnell-park-road, and also residing at 57, Camden-road, said deceased, who was her sister, had been in a weak and nervous state for some time past. On Monday last she saw her sister, who complained of feeling very weak. She heard no more of deceased until Wednesday, when a message arrived that she was dead. The landlady of 247, Tufnell-park-road, said on Monday deceased visited the Zoological-gardens, and seemed rather better than usual. At times deceased was very weak, and Dr. Thomas complained of suffering from diarrhœa. On Tuesday, when she retired to rest she appeared a little better. At four o'clock the following morning witness was awakened by her death, who said he heard some one swooning. She at once got up, and proceeded to the deceased's room. She kissed, but getting no answer, an entrance was effected by means of the deceased's window. She found out of the bedroom, where deceased was discovered lying on the ground in an unconscious condition. A doctor was fetched, but deceased died shortly after his arrival. The doctor's evidence showed that on arrival he found the deceased in a state of coma, and that the heart's action very weak. There was a slight bruise on the forehead, which might have been caused by a fall, but the bruise was not the cause of death. On opening the brain, it was discovered that a blood-vessel had burst, causing compression on the brain, which had caused death. Verdict accordingly.

PRIZE DISTRIBUTION AT CROUCH END BOARD SCHOOLS.

The annual entertainment and distribution of prizes took place at Crouch End Board Schools on Friday evening. There was a large audience of parents and friends of the scholars. Mr. Walter Reynolds, chairman of the Hornsey School Board, presided, and among those present were the Rev. J. H. Greaves, Mr. Butler, Mr. H. Richmond Williams, Mr. J. C. Taylor, Mrs. Reynolds, Miss Butler, and the Misses Butler. The entertainment commenced with two very pretty choruses of musical drill, the first by the infants, and the other by girls. The young folks went through the exercises with a hearty will, and showed that their efforts did not fail to call forth loud applause. The following choruses were very successfully rendered:—"Hail, smiling Morn," "The Sun is Bright," "Hark, the Lark," "The Spinning Chorus," "The Gipsies' Laughing Trio," "All among the Barley," "Whistle and Hoe," and "The Sisters' Meeting Song." Mr. Reynolds expressed for an encore for his singing of "I'm the saddest of Boys," but the Chairman announced that it would not be permitted, as the programme was long in length of the programme. The duet, "Two Merry Hearts are We," was very nicely rendered by Dora Colquhoun and Nellie Perry. Sullivan's song, "Three little Maids from School," was creditably rendered by Edith Spalding, Amy Bungay, and May Bungay. Frances Lumley recited "The Story of the Caterpillar"; Edith Perry, Alice Perry, and Lilian Worthington sang "The three Old Maids of Lee," and Amy Moore, "Who is Sylvia?" M. Frost, T. Beck, Mr. Bond, and Mr. Jolliffe gave a sailor's quartette, "Don't bush thee my Baby," and Annie Spalding, and Dora Colquhoun sang the duet, "Friendship."

The Chairman said he would accept Mr. Chamberlayne's amendment.

The amendment and motion, on being put, were both lost.

MOTHER CHARGED WITH ABANDONING HER CHILD.

At North London Police Court, on Monday, before Mr. Lane, Mary Ann Robinson, aged 18, charwoman, of Brunswick-road, Holloway, was charged with abandoning her male child, aged nine months. The evidence was that on the previous night the prisoner left her baby on the doorstep of 36, Victor-road, Holloway, and went away. She was seen soon afterwards to go into custody, and Mary Dunbar gave evidence against the prisoner; and the latter replied that the father of her child—a sailor now home from sea—was in the house, or the people there knew, and she was only going to put the child for a minute or two so as to frighten them into telling her. She did not intend to abandon or injure the child. Mr. Lane pointed out how dangerous it was for the prisoner to leave her child in this way; but discharged her, and advised her to take out a paternity summons against the father before he went back to sea.
