PURE MALLEABLE ZINC.

S. FOLKER, 143, Royal Colonnade, would direct public attention to a pure MALLEABLE ZINC, which for every purpose to which Lead has hitherto been applied, is very much superior both in point of cheapness and durability.

For Verandas, Flats, Parapet and Middle Gutters, &c. it is only about one half the expence of Lead, and not above one-seventh the weight; consequently an important saving in strength and timber is effected. For rain-water pipes, heads and hoppers, a saving of full 13s. in every 20s. may be with certainty calculated upon, and with a decided advantage which must be particularly borne in mind, viz.—that the Zinc, of which S. S. Folker is inviting an inspection, is not liable to deterioration by atmospheric influence.

Orders to any extent executed with promptness. Price lists may be had on application, and also models of domes and verandas inspected.

N.B. This Zinc must not be mistaken for the German Spelter.
