Four float frigates and two floops are ordered to be ready immediately to join the fugadron on the Downs station.

There was yellerday a considerable alarm in the city, in consequence of the following paper, passed at Lloyd's Cosse-house:—

"Art half past ten, A. M. we were alarmed with an account of several of the enemy's transformation by the signal posts, and all the men of war are in motion to proceed to sea."

By our own letters from Portsmouth we learn, that, in consequence of the above information, a squadron of seven ships immediately put to sea, and by the evening were out of sight.

Admiral Colpoys, moreover, with ten said field in the way are and to see the sea of the seven seven when the said of the line, was ready to follow. The alarm, however, was altogether a falle one, originating in a missake made in giving the figuals.

A cutter arrived at Portsmouth in the evening, which passed see he was a missake made in giving the figuals.

A cutter arrived at Portsmouth in the morning, and had met no enemy.—The ships seen completed one of our own trading seets.

So much for alarms.—It may fill, however, be proper to keep a wightan look out.

COURT OF RINO'S BENCH.

Sir Gashre Webber, v. Lord Helland.

Caish. cos.

Mr. Garrow, Counsel for Sir Godfrey Webfler, now Sir Godfrey Vaffall, stated, that this action was brought to recover from the Right Hon.
Henry Lord Holland a compensation for damages for criminal conversation with the Plaintiff, wise. It was, he observed, much to be lamented that the state of the public morals had given fit to fuch a great number of actions of this description. The prefent was one of a most effective stater, not only on account of both the parties being persons of great consideration in the country, but from the deep wound inslicted on the heart of the Plaintiff, by the criminal intrecourse of which be complained, and for which no compensation in damages could ever be a remedy. The damages were laid at 10,0001.

The first witness was Benjamin Folgett, who produced a copy of the register of the marriage of the plaintiff with his lady, which was folernized the 27th of June, 1786. She was under fixteen years of age.

Several witnesse were then called, who stated, that the conduct of the plaintiff towards his lady and the conduct of the plaintiff towards his lady.

that the conduct of the plaintiff towards his lady was diffinguished for affectionate tenderacia and the moft marked attention.

A number of persons was then examined, the subfinance of whose evidence was, that in the year 1795, Lady Webster was at Florence with the plaintiff and Lord Holland. In February, 1796, Lady Webster went to Rome, where she reided for some time, and was frequently stifted by Lord Holland. At this time the plaintiff had gone to England. In August following, Lady Webster returned to England, and refided in Albemarie-street, and was soon asterwards delivered of a male child; in the was affor delivered of a child in Italy, in October, 1795, which died.
