HOUSE OF COMMONS, SEPT. 25.

Mr. Secretary Dundas arose to mave for leaven to bring in a Bill for the further reductions of the Milita. This was not, he observed, a novel measure, as it had been fully discussed in the half Senion of Parliament; and enough of argument had then been produced to justify the application of a part of our milltid force to more efficient operations. He expected, however, to be told, that it was a measure of rathness and another than the most of the manner of the mann difendion, rejected by a majority of 245 to 171.

In contequence of the paragraph in the King's Speech, addresded to the "Houle of Commons," in which his Majelly recommends the confideration "of providing for the expence which will be receffary in the early part of the enfuing year," a belief has been entertained by fome, that Mr. Pitt would raile money by a Loan. It onderstood, however, that a correspondence has passed between the Minister and the Director the Bask of England on the fubject; and that the Bask has agreed to advance the amount of the Land and Matt Tax for the enfuing year, mound Partiament grant permission to anticipate this gart of the annual revenue.
