Saturday's Post. By Express.

LONDON, November 28.

YESTERDAY two of the five Hamburgh Mails due arrived, which have brought to lamentable confirmation that the whole profile a remaining the property of the profile and the principal towns, viz. Sterlin, Culfrin, Spandau, and Magdeburgh have capitulated; in the latter the French found an immenie treature, as all the most valuable effects, from Muntler, Calfel, and East Friesland, to the amount of more than seven millions sterghabeted and the provided with even the most common necessaries the places were, but for which they never would have fallen into the bands of the French, and particularly Magdeburgh, one of the stronger places in Europe; so to the King of Prussia nobody knows where is at present. The Army of Marshal Daconts at the property of the place was the property of the prope
