Mr. Whitbread, in a very long speech, recapitulated the whole of the evidence, and concluded with expressing the concurrence in the motion of Mr. Perceval, and against the original motion.

Mr. Bankes then gave notice that he should, tomorrow, move certain amendments to the original motion, the principal of which would be to leave out of the Address the imputation of his Royal Highness in the corrupt pradices imputed to him; but adding, that the whole caronitaxes of the charges of the command of the army. The further debate was then potsponed till this day, and the House adjourned at four o'clock.

LONDON. MARCH 10.

More accounts were received from Heligoland yelderday. Letters from Harwich state, that the pucket which brought them failed at an boar's notice, and brought a Russian Mresent and dispatches of moment for Government. Austria, it is added, sas declared war against Prance, and ionne acts of hostility have already taken place. The Russian Meetinger is also faid to have been accompanied by another from Vienna, who is the beauer of dispatches from thence, together with the Declaration of War.

The dispatches from Russian Envoy Extraordinary Don Pedro Cevallos have received dispatches from Seville of the 18th of February. They are of very great importance, and contain proposals from St. Peterburgh, Prulin, and immediately much of this good news to be all true—Pedro Evenlos have received dispatches from Seville of the 18th of February. They are of very great importance, and contain further accounts of the proceedings of the brave defenders of Saragoliu. Another attack on that of the Duke del'infantado, who it is itated had advanced to Toledio.

Gen. Reding had been appointed by the Supreme Junta to the full command of the army of Catalonia, with full power to act on the offentive. We learn from Lidbon, that the British Troops which failed from theace for Cadiz in the beginning of February, under the command of General Mackenzie, had arrived in fafety, and on their landing were encamped in Port St. Mary's, where they were joined by the 4th regiment, which proceeded by land from Elvas.
