Cordial Balm of Gilead.

THE virtues of the CORDIAL BALM of GILEAD are daily demonstrated, in eradicating the most distressing symptoms of Nervous Debility; and nothing has reached mature to establish the fame of this medicine, than its certain success in those complaints which strike their roots deeply in the constitution, and are so fatal to the happiness of mankind. By taking this medicine according to the directions, the deplorable symptoms of disease gradually disappear, and strength, hermity, and every evidence of renovated health will be the happy result.

Decays of nature, whether the effects of natural consequences, or proceeding from imprudences, or an advanced stage of life, have engaged the study and attention of the first physicians of this and all other nations in vain. It is admirably calculated for lassus and other disorders of the stomach and bowels, and for head-aches occasioned by indigestion.

SATURDAY, APRIL 28.

The Duke of Devonshire, and the Marquis of Anglesea, had an audience yesterday of the King at his Palace in Pall Mall.

The Duchess of Kent, and the Prince Feodore, honoured Covent Garden with their presence on Thursday evening.

The Lord Chancellor was so much indisposed with a head-ache, (poor, heart-ache?) that he could not transact business Friday.

The Lord Chancellor this day gave his assent to the dismissal of a petition that "As Mr. Lee is concerned, the petition is completely dismissed, for I am dismissed."—(Laughter.)

Lord Chief Justice Abbott, it is expected, will be made a Peer, and take the Speakership of the Lords.

Messrs. Scarlett, Abercrombie, and Brougham, have had frequent interviews with the Duke of Devonshire the last few days.

Sir Francis Burdett called on Mr. Canning on Thursday.

Lady Cockburn is now at Paris: she is there an object of much attraction.

Parliament will re assemble on Tuesday next.

Neither the Post Office nor the Mansion House were illuminated on Monday evening.

Mail Posts arrived in London last night, from the Continent. The Russian, they say, is rapidly and alarmingly decreasing.

The airs of importance assumed by some of the Official Understrappers on their resignation, remind one of the chambermaid, who, when about quitting her mistress, said to a fellow servant, "I hear it is all over London that I am going to leave my lady."

Two Gentlemen walking down towards Westminster, and discussing the new appointments, one asked the other, "Who is Canning to be thrown from a high-mettled steed, which he could not manage.

"Pray, what is his Lordship to be (said one of them) in the new Ministry?" "I should think (said the other) he wishes to be Master of the Horse.

A Correspondent informs us, that "last Sunday evening a gentleman was observed to have a most distressing pain in the Churchyard, Cheltenham, because he had on a coloured neckerchief. This (he adds) is a modern religion!!"

M. Ude tells us that "sauces are the soul of cookery, and that cookery is the soul of festivity, at all times and to all ages.

The females of Georgia, so remarkable for their beauty, are not however astonished with the charms of countenance which nature has bestowed upon them, without the assistance of the pencil of paint. One of their great luxuries is the bath, which they enjoy in perfection at Tellis, where artificial excavations in the rock, situated in deep ravines, afford the most delightful retreats. The Georgian ladies devote a whole day in every week to these baths, not unfrequently passing a whole night in them. Here, reclining in luxurious ease upon cushions, they amuse themselves by staining their hair and nails; here also they paint their faces red and white, and above all, trusting themselves to make their eyebrows an Anacreontic charm absolutely essential in a Georgian beauty.

NEW ADMINISTRATION.—The excitement occasioned by the new Ministerial appointments prevailed the whole of yesterday, and the language of astonishment was in every mouth heard. Our readers will perceive the appointment of Mr. Canning, Lords F.L. Gower, Eliot, Mountcharles, and E. A. M'Naghten, announced in Friday's Gazette; together with the elevation of Mr. Robinson, and Mr. Plunkett to the peerage. To these we are enabled to add, the confirmation of our statement last Monday, respecting the Commandership in Chief. The King, with his Heralist Taylor as his Secretary, will perform the functions of the office with ease. The Duke of Cambridge has not been offered the situation.

Mr. Scarlet is Attorney General, and Sir N. Tyndal, Solicitor General.

Mr. Brougham refuses a silk gown, because it should not be presumed that he is poisoned to the New Minister by such stuff.—He friends, it is understood, have consented to accept office without him, on the sole ground that he has himself, peremptorily desired the matter to be so arranged.

There is no doubt of the Duke of Devonshire being the new Lord Chamberlain. We can also state that Sir J. Mackintosh, (not Mr. Abercrombie) is likely to be Judge Advocate. The Marquis of Lansdowne for the present declines office. The undiminished confidence, friendship, and several other Leaders of the Whig party have agreed to come into the cabinet before the end of the Session,—the delay being entirely owing to the consideration of personal convenience.

The Home Secretaryship will be filled by Mr. S. Bourne.

Mr. Turney is to succeed Mr. Wallace, as master of the Mint; and Sir J. Leach is to succeed Sir W. Grant, as Master of the Rolls.

Mr. Hart, is to be Vice Chancellor.

A WONDER,—and adieu one onto the lawyers.—A gentleman's servant, who was dragging a piece of ground at West Town, found a rabbit's nest. The old one of course got off, but all the young were secured. It happened that a cat in the neighbourhood had that morning kittened, and the young rabbits being intermixed with her own progeny, she is actually now fostering all with equal care.

PORTENTOUS SIGNS FOR APRIL, 1827.—I. An artificial soubrette and coquette in the Lascelles fell on the Queen's Bench. II. A volcano appears in Dorsetshire.—Last, but not least—a score or two of dental gentlemen range their places.

DR. BLOOMER'S DREAM.—A man dreamt he was a cuckold: a friend told him it was a bad sign, because, when a dream is true, Virgil says it passes through the Horned Gate.—Swift.

TO THE FIRST OF MAY,

'Hard his berte that loreth sought
In May, when all this mirth is wrought.—CHAUCER.

Hail, thou rosy May! with thy merry dancing hours,
Thy every leaf decked with dew, and thy every bud with flowers,—
Hail, thou rosy May! for the wintry winds are past,
And thy sunbeams and coming showers have driven their hosts at last!

To life's young hour of feeling the gates of Arabv,
The odours of thy spicy breath in sweetness far native;
They come with gentle coolness, and whisper of repose,
Of sapphires, joys, and thy bright sun, as if they ne'er could part.
Let Summer's lover his dwelling greet about her parching day,
The lily is not so fresh as thou, nine sons dew sister May!
The star that greats thy radiant brow so sweet in lustre is,
It shineth not in heaven nor earth, the bound of all bliss.
Thy pearls are nothing on the bough, the land is giving life.
The sweet birds are awakening, and thy realm is free of strife,
The peacefulness of heaven's own reign is round thy flowery track,—
O glamour! this sunpicious day that greets thy footsteps back!
The violet sparkle with delight, the bee is in the rose,
The ocean-swans curl softer now, and soon hath lost of care,
The low of weary oxen mingles with the song of birds between,
Lest it disturb earth's harmony among the branches green.
Thou kindliest month of all the year, yon not too fast away,
As to the aspect's ear prone to die, for there is mercy
Of thy sweet presence, since to him thou art a token indeed,
Save as he sees to grieve, to friendship, love, and creed.
Thou rt come, bright May! with passion's glance to flush the virgin's cheek,
From feelings indefinable her tongue must never speak,
The sadness of affection's dawn is over her soft heart,
She sighs until love's delight, and tears are wiped apart.
She hears the muted bird's first song, when love is all the theme,
Of thee, thou month of love, inspires, why she is not the same,
No songster comes to sing to her, and why her eye is wary,
Covering her shining solitude with his congenial lay.
Welcome, thou rosy May! thy merry-dancing hours,
Thy eyes of "dewy light," and the fragrance of thy flowers,—
Welcome, thou rosy May! for the wintry winds are past,
And thy sunbeams and coming showers have driven them at last!

PROPHECY IN LAST SEPTEMBER.

Our Tories now get less censorious,
Whigs will be more than ever they-oo!
A coalition is much looked for,
We could name the places some are looked for!

Mr. CANNING and the DUKE of WELLINGTON.

The following are copies of letters between Mr. Canning and the Duke of Wellington, prior to his Grace's resignation:—

Mr. C. to the Duke.—"My dear Duke, I am commanded by his Majesty to form a new administration. It will be a great satisfaction to me if your Grace will consent to become a member of it. I am, &c."

The Duke to Mr. C.—" My dear Mr. Canning, before I reply to your letter, I wish to be informed who is to be at the head of the new Ministry, and which of my former colleagues are to form a part of it. I am, &c."

Mr. C. to the Duke.—"My Lord Duke, after I had informed your Grace that I had received his Majesty's commands to form an Administration, I am surprised that it should be inquired from me who is to be at the head of it? I am to be that person. I remain, &c."

The Duke to Mr. C.—" Sir, I have only to say, in reply to your letter, that I cannot consent to become a member of the new Administration. I remain, &c."

This correspondence was laid before the King; and the Duke, under feelings of irritation, sent in his resignation to his Majesty from which he received a communication to the following effect:—"The King receives the Duke of Wellington's resignation with the most unfeigned regret which his Grace professes to feel in tendering it."

MYSTERIOUS MARRIAGE.

[We have received the following from a Correspondent.]

A lady, dressed in the most elegant style of fashion, walking past the House Guards early in the morning lately, addressed a young soldier belonging to the Foot Guards, in the following manner:—

Lady.—Soldier, will you have me for your wife? Soldier (confused and astonished at the question put to him) replied he was.

Lady.—Then, soldier, will you have me for your wife? Soldier (still more confused).—I have no objection, Madam.

Lady.—Then come with me. I have a chaise and a ring, (taking them out of her reticule), and we will be married immediately.

The lady then called a hackney-coach from the stand, and proceeded to St. ——'s Church, where they were married.

Immediately on their return from the Church, the lady stepped into the coach (first handing the bridesmaid a purse, containing 20 sovereigns), telling him that she would send for him in the evening, and afterwards purchase his discharge. She then ordered the coachman to drive forward, and from that time to the present, the soldier has never seen nor heard from his bride!

It is scarcely possible to conjecture, what could have been the motive, unless she wished for some particular purpose, to view the ornithelse of her marriage.

The soldier says he only regrets it in one sense, which is, that he is a wife and no wife!" but should wish to be informed whether under such mysterious circumstances, he can ever marry again.—Morning Paper.

Market Journal.

LIVERPOOL CORN EXCHANGE, APRIL 24.

We have had small supplies of Grain, &c. from Ireland and from abroad, during the past week; but several parcels of Wheat Quarterays. There was a fair demand for Barley at our market to-day. What sold 1d under those of this day week. Oats were much neglected. Barley in fair request, at 30s. 6d to 32s. Both malting, and 2s. 3d. a 2s. 6d. for grinding. In Beans or Indian Corn no change. Flour and Oatmeal steady. Bolter bran fallen nearly a shilling, and inquired, and price nominal. Beef, Pork, Bacon and Hams steady, but little doing.

LONDON, CORN EXCHANGE, APRIL 27.

The arrival of Wheat this week has been very limited, and there is certainly a better sale, what few fine parcels appeared were readily taken off at a trifling advance. Barley still rather improving. Monday's prices, and Beans and Peas are rather higher. The Oat trade is not over brisk, but we do not consider it cheaper. In other articles no variation worth notice.

(From the London New Price Current of Friday.)

SUGAR.—The demand for Muscovades has continued steady and considerable during the week, the public sales of which, each day, with with 18,791 bags Mauritius sold in Mincing lane, by public sale, and the very extensive quantity brought forward at the India House forms an important feature, being that notwithstanding the immense quantity of Sugars forced on the Market, the prices have been fully maintained, and the biddings have been spirited, at rather better prices; the Refined Market is again nearly cleared of the low goods for export, and the prices are 6d. to 1s. per cwt. higher, the purchases of fine goods for home consumption are considerable.

COFFEE.—The public sales this week have gone off with more spirit, and at rather better prices, than the British Plantation; the Foreign is unvaried; some ordinary broken St. Domingo sold at 44s. 6d., the good ordinary pale Jamaica at 47s.

COTTON.—The accounts from Liverpool and from the manufacturing districts continue to be favourable, and the demand for cotton wool, little effect here, except that the market is more firm and the sales more considerable.

RUM, BRANDY, AND HOLLANDS.—There is little alteration in the Rum Market this week, some parcels of strong proof Leewards are rather higher, offering at 2s. 3d. to 2s. 4d. Fine Jamaica unreserved. Some parcels of Brandy for export have sold at full prices, but Hollands are heavy, and rather lower.

HEMP, FLAX, AND TALLOW.—The Hemp Market this week is rather lighter, but the sales are by no means to the extensive. Flax unchanged, and the sales are very inferior. The Tallow Market is quiet, the prices of Hemp and Flax are little varied.

OILS.—The Oil Market is heavy, but not lower, except in Seed Oils. Rape has fallen considerably.

TOBACCO.—There are no purchases of Tobacco to report. The public sales this week have been unimportant.

TEA.—The Market remains steady. Boxes in half chests are scarce, so as to command a trifling advance, other descriptions little doing.

FRUIT.—The great scarcity of Red Smyrna Raisins seems to have attracted the attention of the growers, some parcels having been made at 30s. 6d., the quality in the importers hands is now very small: there have been no arrivals lately.

The doctor stared again, and getting up in a passion, said, 'Damn it madam, why the hell don't you speak?' The lady then retired, upwards the doctor stamping, and he returned her curtsey, and then vanished. The doctor was at first a little pissed, but in a few moments recollected his fasting, and found that it was nothing more than a fit of abstraction, or inactivity of a part of the retina." But mark the result the next morning came a rap at the door, and into the room was ushered Mrs. Jones, the lady of Henry Rhodes, a child about 2½ years old, who died on Monday from the effects of taking vitriol, which he drank unperceived on the previous day from a cup standing on a shelf. ## Cordial Balm of Gilead.

THE virtues of the CORDIAL BALM of GILEAD are daily demonstrated, in eradicating the most distressing symptoms of Nervous Debility; and nothing has reached mature to establish the fame of this medicine, than its certain success in those complaints which strike their roots deeply in the constitution, and are so fatal to the happiness of mankind. By taking this medicine according to the directions, the deplorable symptoms of disease gradually disappear, and strength, hermity, and every evidence of renovated health will be the happy result.

Decays of nature, whether the effects of natural consequences, or proceeding from imprudences, or an advanced stage of life, have engaged the study and attention of the first physicians of this and all other nations in vain. In these affections, the Cordial Balm of Gilead has produced such good effects, as most flourishes the most unpalatable of its amazing restorative power. It is admirably calculated for lassus and other disorders of the stomach and bowels, and for head-aches occasioned by indigestion.

Prepared according to the Receipts of the late Dr. Solomon, at Gilead House, near Liverpool, in 11s. and 33s. bottles; the latter containing nearly four of the former. Every genuine bottle has a stamp, which bears the original name and address, "Saml. Solomon, Liverpool," to imitate which is felony. Five Pound cases may be had at Gilead-House, and on inclosing a fee, advice may be obtained as required.

The ANTI-IMPETIGINES, or SOLOMON'S DROPS, for purifying the blood, eradicating scorbutic humours, and restoring the system when impaired by the immoderate use of Mercury, have been found the great and only restorer of health and vigour in disorders where their operation has constantly failed.

Also just published, price 2s. a new Edition with Additions, of A GUIDE TO HEALTH, in a variety of Complaints, some of which are treated on under the following heads, viz.—Advice to nervous patients, antidote against nervousness, debility of nerves, spirits, &c. &c. &c. [7887

EARTHQUAKE.

(FROM THE BALTIMORE ADVERTISER, MARCH 26.)

A friend has politely favoured us with the following extract of a letter, dated:

"LA GUAYRA, FEB. 15, 1827.—We had a tremendous shock of an earthquake on the morning of the 21st inst.; I was nearly thrown from my cot; the sensation when I first awoke was similar to that of being tossed by the back of a person placed beneath a bed. I was not long in getting into one of the windows; our old house made a terrible noise, during like the burning of a sqprnce wood fire—I thought it would come down: the shock was preceded by an awful rumbling, and followed by a rushing sound, like that of a heavy gust, although the air was quite still. It is the heaviest shock which has been felt since 1812, when Caracas and La Guayra were laid in ruins; however, no material injury has been sustained. A number of people were driven from their cots, and two small and houses were pulverised in Caracas."

Among other pieces of advice, gratuitously offered to Mr. Canning, is a recommendation to abolish all sinecures or corrupted places. Mr. Canning is to be congratulated on the prudence of this. A letter receipt for not forming a Ministry was never devised.

It is confidently asserted, that Lord Eldon had a long audience with a Right Rev. Prelate on the resignation.

The amount subscribed towards the Royal Duke's monument on Saturday, was £13,900. 7s.

The Marquis of Anglesea, may now be said to stand without a leg. A great political wit once said the Noble Marquis had one leg in the grave—and having at present the other in a Cabinet, he may possibly be found to have two legs in office. But the Noble Marquis need not despair, for Shakespeare says, "A Court, he that cannot make a leg, put off his cap, kiss his hand, and say nothing, has neither leg, hand, or tongue."

The late Ministers as well as the late Opposition, will find themselves awkwardly situated as to the benches of Parliament on which to sit. The Ministerial party, will probably occupy the front benches, so that Lord Eldon will still have the most before him.—In the lower House the difficulty will be greater; and when the Speaker comes to the exclaim, "Gentlemen will please to take their places,' there will not be a single decently puzzled what place to take.

The Ex-Bishop Clopher, is said in a Scotch paper to be living in the West of Scotland. Oh no—in Fife, Sandfield, well known to agriculturists for several ingenious inventions and for his interesting enquiries. On Friday last, at London terrace, Hackney, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Mr. Marshall, the artist, many years resident at Newmarket.—On Saturday last suddenly, whilst sitting in his chair, at Clopton's Hospital, aged 65, Mr. Fulcher, formerly a builder and surveyor, of Bury.
